

- Most people that I know right, that I surrounded myself with anyway in the military, were very ambitious, right, and they're people that want growth. They want a challenge, they like responsibility, that's why they joined, they seek it out. Life Time will give you that in spades. You have every opportunity to grow. Especially in our industry and what we do there's nothing else like it and to see the growth trajectory that we're on for the next five to 10 years if you're transitioning now or you've transitioned recently, even in the last couple years and you've been doing something else, I can assure you and especially in a physical space sense there's not a company out there that's growing this way. If you want a secure future with great opportunity for responsibility and growth, to live a healthy way of life, and options, quite frankly you're hard pressed to find a better company to work for than Life Time.
